JESUS LOVED THEM

By PATRICK and GARRISON

NICODEMUS

"Now there was a man of the Pharisees, named Nicodemus, a ruler of the Jews: the same came to Jesus by night..."

—John III:12

Nicodemus was the prototype of today's lukewarm believer.

His Soul recognized and acknowledged Jesus, but his mind urged caution. It told him: you are a man of influence and position in your community, but this Man is a vagabond. You are learned in the laws of the synagogue, but this Man speaks of a kingdom beyond the law and beyond life. If you are seen among His followers, will you not be compromised in the eyes of your associates?

So Nicodemus went to Jesus by night. He wanted to be a secret disciple, never called upon to defend publicly the faith he professed privately.

"Rabbi," he said, "we know that thou art a teacher come from God; for no one can do these signs that thou doest, except God be with him."

Jesus replied that "except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God."

These words puzzled the aging Nicodemus. He asked Jesus, "How can a man be born when he is old? Can he enter a second time into his mother's womb, and be born?"

Nicodemus, the man of discretion and worldly wisdom, did not understand the meaning of spiritual rebirth.

Later, when the chief priests and Pharisees gathered in council to plot Jesus' death, Nicodemus had only enough courage to suggest that, according to the law, no man should be judged without having an opportunity to defend himself.

But he quickly retreated into silence when the other members of the assembly turned on him. He was afraid to declare himself openly on the side of Jesus. He lacked the zeal and courage to use his influence to demand, rather than merely to suggest, justice.

As Papini observes, "When the man of his admiration was martyred and killed and His enemies were satisfied, and there was no more danger of being compromised, then he comes with balsams to pour into those wounds which were inflicted by his cowardice."

How To Be Young And Enjoy It

We are hearing much about teenagers these days, pro and con. Since my son and older daughter have only just passed through that stage of their lives, and my younger daughter is still a teen-ager, I have had some experience with this age group.

Also, as a result of writing and lecturing, I get thousands of letters from young people telling me about their problems and asking for advice. Personally, I think teenagers are wonderful human beings. The great majority are honest, idealistic, fine-living youngsters.

Only a few compose the mixed-up and erratic fringe. I do not believe there is basically a bad boy or girl. Those who act that way are, actually, not being themselves.

ONE QUESTION I am asked quite often is expressed by a fifteen year old: "All the boys in my class like the popular girls. Could you give me some advice on how to be popular?"

I answered: "To be popular, practice being friendly and kindly to everyone. Be happy and outgoing. Get a lot of fun out of everything. Always act so that everybody will have a good opinion of you. Think of others first, especially those who are shy and lonely. Don't try too hard to be liked, for then you may do foolish things that would cause people to think you are insincere, and that would make you less popular. Be an inspiring personality. Help other people to like themselves, and they will like you very much indeed."

On this same subject of popularity, one of the questions that often arises relates to the problem of petting. "Do I have to pet to be popular?" girls often ask. Of course, one way to avoid that issue is to stay in groups, to have fun in crowds, to keep out of parked cars, and to avoid going out alone with anyone you're not sure of. But there is a more positive answer.

YOUNG PEOPLE should realize that a girl who does not pet can be sufficiently good company to have boy friends. No smart boy is going to by-pass a girl of charm and character simply because she is not free with her kisses. Actually it seems conceivable that the girl with the greatest resistance may eventually get the best boy. Psychologically that which is hard to get is more desirable.

One of the best ways for a teenager to resolve such problems is to develop the kind of personality that is really alive and vital. Personality force that has irresistible attractiveness develops out of an inner life that is filled with joy and enthusiasm. And how do you get that? I often think of Tolstoy's statement, "To know God is to live." And this won't make you seem "queer" or separate you from the crowd.

On the contrary, it can make you the life of the group, for when you get real religion you become so happy, so vital, so alive that you interest and fascinate everybody. Such a youngster really has something on the ball.

HOW CAN A TEEN-AGER learn those spiritual skills that add that extra something to his life? One of the best ways is to enroll in a good church school and youth group where you'll meet youngsters who have found real answers to real problems and are getting a big kick out of life. You'll be amazed at the fun they have.

The Laymen's National Committee, representing all faiths, is now observing National Sunday School Week. Its theme is: "Sunday School — source of spiritual strength." I firmly believe that church school attendance can give a teen-ager spiritual joy and strength and teach him how to be young and enjoy it.

Incidentally, I have just published a little pocket-sized booklet called "How to Be Young and Enjoy It," which takes up teen-age problems in more detail than I have space for here. If you will write me a postcard, care of The Salem News, I will be happy to send you one without charge. If some of my readers would like to help distribute this booklet to youth everywhere, I'd be glad to hear from you.

Legend has it that, long ago, the dogwood came into bloom on Calvary and that, afterwards, a cross was implanted into the flower itself, to remain for all time. You can see it if you look closely, rust brown against the white of each individual blossom.

Many of us carry crosses, faint like the dogwood's emblem but with us, nevertheless. Somehow, in this Lenten season, we become particularly conscious of them and of our need for help—a certain kind of help, that can be found only through the things we learn in Church.

The Church doesn't pretend to banish our cares and woes. But, its teachings realistically consider the experiences of life itself. No matter what our personal cross may be, we seem able to bear its burden with more strength.

Lent is a wonderful time in which to begin making church-going a regular part of your life—if you haven't already.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Age Of Enlightenment

In making the announcement of the latest Ford Foundation grant to education, the Woodrow Wilson Fellowship Program, Henry T. Heald made this significant comment as president of the organization:

"Our nation has come to the point where every field of human endeavor, where, indeed, our progress and survival depend upon educated people. At the heart of the Ford Foundation's total program is an abiding interest in and a concern for the educated individual. . . But essentially, consistently and always, we are interested in the product that good education alone makes possible: The Thinking Man."

Does this statement, describing a policy that has caused more than a billion dollars to be transferred from Ford industrial profit to educational advancement, signify the end of the anti-intellectualism that kept the educated minority on he defensive for so many years in the United States?

Although the Ford Foundation is the largest, it is only one of many sources of wealth that have been opened to educators, students and advocates of education in recent years as the likeliest way to develop ability to discriminate between true and false when making decisions in areas where ignorance is no longer bliss but tragedy.

Is an age of enlightenment dawning midway in the 20th century—an age when the uneducated no longer will boast of their superiority over "college professors," "brain-trusters" and the like?

Matter Of Millions

In view of lively interest in what happens to dues collected from union members, the beginning of the fourth year of the United Auto Workers strike against the Kohler Co. of Sheboygan, Wis., should draw special attention.

When a one-year contract between Kohler and the union expired in 1954, the union said it wanted a manufacturer of plumbing supplies to make the same kind of an agreement UAW had with automobile manufacturers. The company refused. A strike was called on April 5, 1954.

After a 54-day shutdown, the plant was reopened despite the strike, which never has been called off. Fifteen months ago, all strikers were urged to look for other jobs when UAW announced a reduction of strike benefits.

Whether the union has paid out as little as $10 million or as much as $20 million depends on who is making the estimate. But it has been somewhere between the two sums, although union leaders have known for a long time they cannot win their fight; that Kohler Co. has been showing a net profit while the union has been sustaining a gross loss.

It has been the costliest face-saving operation in union history.

Richard W. Slocum

In the death of Richard W. Slocum, executive vice president of the Philadelphia Bulletin, the press of America has lost a staunch advocate. Millions of newspaper readers in big and little cities everywhere have been beneficiaries of his keen judgment and rare talent in the preservation of their right to know.

Educated as a lawyer, Mr. Slocum was drafted into the Bulletin's service in 1937 and a year later became its general manager. After ten years of official participation in the American Newspaper Publishers Association, he became the organization's president in 1954. Ever watchful of attempts to abridge constitutional freedoms, Mr. Slocum fought constantly and effectively to see that the people of this nation had a free flow of information on every subject.

Publishers from all parts of America and Canada will meet in annual convention in New York the latter part of April. The absence of their leader, a big man physically and mentally, will be sadly felt.

Bad All Over

The bandit-gang murder of a young American couple and three companions in a desert ambush in Iran has made headline news in the United States.

It is a shock to realize that bloody crimes like this can be committed in Iran—a shock to be reminded that there are parts of the world in which human life is as cheap as the lives of lower animals.

It is a greater shock to be reminded that one of these parts of the world is the United States, where hoodlums kill victims for the fun of watching them die, where murderers can be hired to snuff out a victim they never saw before, where children are waylaid and murdered routinely and where automobiles mash the life out of more human beings in a weekend than Iranians will account for in the next half century.

The difference is that in Iran the people who do these things are called "bandits", a word so handy it should be adopted here, to help account for the unaccountable and the unforgivable.

Deep Faith And $8

By RICHARD N. LEE

PICO, Calif.

In a few weeks the members of the First Baptist Church of Pico will observe the fifth anniversary of their church, founded on abundant faith and a mere $8 in cash.

The Rev. Leo Schlegel and his wife, Ernestine, knew that $8 would scarcely buy a keg of nails when they arrived in this Los Angeles County town of 15,000 five years ago, discovered it lacked a Baptist Church and resolved to build one.

For these two young graduates of California Baptist Seminary were thinking of souls, not nails, when they spent their entire working capital on rent for the American Legion Hall ($5) and an ad in the local newspaper ($3) calling all Baptists to services the following Sunday.

What happened then would have discouraged a less determined couple, for on the first three Sundays the Rev. Mr. Schlegel preached to no one but Mrs. Schlegel.

True, two women had appeared for the services the first Sunday, and one the second but, awed by the bareness of the auditorium, they had fled before the worship had gotten well under way. No one at all responded on the third Sunday.

The turning point in the fortunes of the First Baptist Church of Pico came on the fourth Sunday. Three young couples showed up, stayed through the entire service and remained afterward to hear the Rev. Mr. Schlegel tell of his aspirations for the budding parish.

By July 13, 1952, when the church opened officially in the old "Burnham residence," several additional members had been added to the congregation. A few weeks later the town fathers condemned the house as a fire hazard and the parishioners began worshipping in the tiny office of an abandoned lumber yard.

In Sept. 1953, a 4½-acre site in downtown Pico was purchased and in Nov. 1954, ground was broken for a church building. Most of the construction work was performed by nonprofessional church members who dedicated their weekends, vacations and holidays to the task.

The congregation met in the unfinished, L-shaped building on Palm Sunday, 1955, and it was formally dedicated last July.

The Rev. Mr. Schlegel's victory was not achieved without price, for last summer he suffered a physical breakdown brought on, his doctors said, by long hours of toil during which he often deprived himself of food and sleep.

He has since recovered, however, and now his congregation is raising a fund to buy him an automobile.

Soon to celebrate its fifth anniversary, the congregation is composed of more than 450 members, the Sunday School rolls have topped 400.

Five young members are studying for the ministry and the church's working capital for 1957 was snowballed to an impressive $30,000.

Tax Cuts Uncertain

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Citizens struggling with their income tax burdens may take some solace today in the many promises of a cut in taxes—sometime.

But Washington seems as reluctant to set a date for it as spring is to arrive this year.

Financial circles here think the present uncertainty over the business climate may have a lot to do with this. They suspect that as of now the fiscal authorities aren't too sure whether the budget is going to be balanced, as first thought, or not.

The reasons:

1. The government just now is spending more than it estimated earlier and the administration advocates spending still more.
2. The Treasury's future income depends in a large degree on which way corporate profits turn and upon a continuing increase in personal income.

To take the gloomiest view first, for sake of argument, financial economists say:

If government spending goes still higher and corporate earnings turn down or don't increase as hoped, and if business activity should slow down enough to keep the Treasury's take from individual income taxes only level, the Treasury could find itself with a deficit instead of the small surplus the President anticipated in January when he made his guess for next year's revenues and expenditures.

Even if there is a small surplus there will be a sizable body of conservative opinion that it should be applied to cutting the federal debt which has now risen to the point where the annual interest charges top seven billion dollars. In this view, tax cuts should come only later.

President Eisenhower's view is that tax cuts should come only after at least a token cut in the federal debt. And he says a Treasury surplus is more likely to come from increased tax returns due to higher incomes and greater business activity than from any substantial declines in government spending.

Those who take the rosier view that tax cuts may not be too far away base their hopes on one of two things:

1. Party politics could bring tax cuts regardless of what that did to a precariously balanced budget or to the federal debt.
2. Congress might cut the proposed budget enough to make a tax cut feasible.

Somewhere in between is a small band that holds that tax cuts would spur consumer buying, stimulate business activity and expansion, and thereby give the Treasury as much in income tax returns at the lower rate as it now gets from present rates on corporate and individual incomes.

But whatever the final outcome in Congress over federal expenditures and taxes, most citizens can take small comfort from the prospects nearer home.

State and local tax rates have been on the rise, in general, for some time. Even faster has risen the demand for the things that these taxes pay: Schools, hospitals, highways, sewer and water systems, police and fire protection, and the increasing public payroll.

So the prospect is that the rise in state and local tax rates will continue.

That's part of the economy's growing pains.

Purely Personal

By TRUMAN TWILL

One of the best phrases ever coined to explain what is behind proxy fights for control of big companies is "commercial cannibalism."

It is as cheap and corny for a TV actor to deliver a commercial as it used to be when early movies ran advertising slides between reels.

I am convinced, as I believe millions of others now are convinced, that the only people who pay income taxes through the nose are the middle-classes who never have learned the ropes or purchased the benefit of "experts."

A clipping that has grown dog-eared from being carried around quotes Roy Fruhauf, president of the company of the same name that makes trailers, to the effect that railroad box cars soon will be extinct. Trailers will be moved on and off railroad flatcars, instead, that is the coming idea.

The "messes" of dandelion greens which used to be put on the table when I was a child were made semi-palatable by sliced hard-boiled eggs. The greens were eaten, because of some supposed medicinal value, but the eggs were eaten for pleasure.

It is my impression no one gives a thought any more to April Fool, once an occasion for a wide variety of weird gags and practical jokes.

When the time belatedly came to promote Brig. Gen. Ralph W. Zwicker, target of Sen. McCarthy in 1954, the Senate vote was 70-2. One of the two was McCarthy, the other was Nevada's Malone, which is what you might call an "irreducible minimum."

I am disturbed and offended by stories about murders which tell me why the murderer committed the crime. I do not believe reporters ever are qualified to state why murders are committed, even if they think they know.

The reason I cry at weddings—the reason anybody cries at a wedding—is because the people getting married are tackling one of the trickiest and most rewarding experiments in human relationships and deserve to make a go of it.

With millions of electric shavers in use, it is a matter of time until someone invents a gadget to make it possible for men to trim their own hair with the things, thereby getting rid of the barber-shop haircut the same as men shucked off the barbershop shave after safety razors came into general use.

If you are one of the many who call it "gorilla warfare," you will be interested to know "guerrilla warfare" is in no way connected with the great apes and is not even pronounced that way.

Whenever a big-shot in Washington blasts off about how much better it would be if all of us lived within our means, I get the shakes. The last time it happened, they called it the Great Depression and I was clipped in two bank closings.

The most damaging thing that has happened to unions as the result of the Teamsters' diodes is the public realization that rank-and-file members, many of them unionists against their will anyway, neither know nor care what is done with their money.

I question the logic of the five-day week in a six-day world and am completely out of patience with enterprises that close up one day each work week. I do not care how long they stay open but believe they should be open every day.

The dynamite in what is now referred to as "the Beck affair" is in letters the Senate racketeers are getting from unionists who never would have been heard from otherwise. Teamster money is not the only sugar that drew flies.

Labor Law Move Mushrooms

By MARTIN ARUNDEL

Disclosures of corruption in the Teamsters Union have given fresh impetus to a mushrooming legislative movement to strip free-wheeling labor bosses of much of their economic and political power.

Both honest and questionable union bigwigs have expressed fear that the climate is ripening fast in Congress and state legislatures for the enactment of laws to spell out what labor leaders can and cannot do.

On the federal front, chairman John L. McClellan, whose Senate committee exposed the doubtful dealings in teamster funds that have led to the AFL-CIO suspension of Teamster President Dave Beck, has noted "the need of specific legislation designed to correct abuses that have developed."

"In part this could be achieved by amendments to the Taft-Hartley law," the Arkansas Democrat went on. "Some areas may require entirely new legislation."

SEN. IRVING IVES, a member of the McClellan committee who is considered a "friend of labor," wants a law requiring full public disclosure of employee welfare and pension plans.

He also favors tightening Taft-Hartley requirements on the annual filing of union financial reports with the U. S. Labor Department.

Labor Secretary James P. Mitchell reported that his department was also framing legislation to meet the problems uncovered in the teamster case whose reactions have included an inside-the-union movement for Beck's removal as well as the arrest of local government officials in Oregon, the teamster boss's home state.

Sens. Barry Goldwater, Joseph McCarthy and Karl Mundt, other Republican members of the McClellan committee, apparently want to restrict closely organized labor in politics, especially the political use of union money.

They also have inferred that unions should be put under anti-trust laws to curb alleged monopolistic practices.

The other Democrats on the committee — Sens. John F. Kennedy, Samuel J. Ervin, and Patrick V. McNamara — haven't yet made known what sort of legislation they favor. But the House Education and Labor Committee has announced it would investigate union welfare funds to see if tighter laws were necessary.

AN EXAMPLE of the trend in state legislatures is developing in Pennsylvania. There, a Republican assemblyman, Willard F. Agnew Jr., of Pittsburgh, has introduced a "bill of rights for labor."

A sweeping proposal, the bill would forbid union dues' increases except by secret ballot and tie the hands of union leaders on admission and expulsion of members, on welfare and insurance funds and the use of any union money in politics.

Although Pennsylvania AFL-CIO leaders have blasted the "bill of rights" as "anti-labor, arrogant and cruel," there are definite indications in several other unions that the lowly dues-payers are fed up with the huge salaries and expense accounts, irresponsible handling of union funds and the dictatorial rule of some labor bureaucrats.

Teamster locals in San Francisco, Portland, Spokane, La Salle, Ill., and Cincinnati have bitterly protested against the dubious actions of their top national officers, including Beck and Jimmy Hoffa.

Sen. McClellan's select committee on improper practices in the labor management field is receiving scores of valuable tips on undisclosed offenses by union leaders, according to Chief Counsel Robert F. Kennedy.

RANK - AND - FILE ferment has also been reported spreading, especially against dues hikes and the five - figure yearly paychecks of officers in Walter Reuther's auto workers, the rubber workers, and the chemical workers.

While labor experts doubt that this growing discontent fuses into widespread rank - and - file revolt, they believe a poll of union dues - payers now would show an overwhelming majority favoring laws to make their leaders accountable for every cent of union money.

A large percentage of union members, it is believed, would support legislation loosening the economic and political grip that many labor bosses like Beck have so long held.

Murmur Of The Heart

A mother writes that her doctor says her child has a slight murmur of the heart, but that it "could disappear at any time."

I presume the doctor used the term "slight" in order not to alarm the mother. Actually, the loudness of the murmur is of much less importance than what has caused the murmur and where it is located.

Our understanding of heart murmurs is much more accurate than it was a generation ago. Then it was all too common to put a child to bed for weeks or months when any kind of a murmur was heard. The idea was that rest was beneficial. This resulted in making unnecessary invalids out of some children.

The important thing about a heart murmur is to find the cause, where it is located, whether it is progressing and like matters.

In some children, for example, the growth of the heart and the valves inside the heart do not keep pace with each other, so that the valves allow a small amount of blood to slip back. This causes a murmur to be heard over the region of the valve.

This kind of murmur is not due to disease and tends to disappear as the youngster grows older. It is generally called a "functional" murmur.

But heart murmurs can be serious. Among these are the ones which result from abnormality of the heart valves present at birth or those caused by disease.

The valve deformities present at birth are fairly rare and can usually be discovered quite early. The term used here is congenital heart disease. Some cases can be corrected by surgery.

Most of the valve troubles which cause murmurs in youth are caused by rheumatic fever. Even these however, can be so mild that nothing serious ever develops.

Rheumatic fever injures the heart valves by causing growths on the lips or curps of the valves so that they cannot close completely.

If the damage to the heart valves has been severe, the murmur may mean that physical activity has to be curtailed. However, in many cases the growths are small and not active. Even though they have produced enough damage to cause a murmur to be heard, the heart is able to do its job without trouble.

An accurate diagnosis of cause and degree of damage must be made. The mere presence of a murmur in the heart is not enough. Nor does it always mean that ordinary exercise has to be eliminated, or that there will be any serious interference with life or health.

Certainly parents should avoid any feeling of panic merely because a child has been found to have a heart murmur.

Dear Ted Williams: What are you doing? Trying to be the first baseball player in history to slide into a base so that you spike people who ain't even playing?

Anybody would think those boys who have been striking you out in spring training were U.S. Marines or that Harry Truman was out there umpiring with the ghost of Bob Taft.

MAYBE SOME SPORTS WRITERS led you into some wild swinging, but you have been a baseball star long enough to know that an outfielder ain't supposed to throw beanballs, especially at people in the bleachers.

Maybe it was the climate, or you got so bored with spring games you wanted to supply your own excitement.

Anyhow you do yourself no good. You are supposed to knock baseballs over the fence, not people, institutions and customs.

EVERY SEASON I get a fear that you will pop off and start swinging your bat with outstanding irreverence, maybe denouncing the U.S. Armed Forces, NATO, canned eggs, Grover Cleveland, Gen. Patton, southern fried chicken, boys' clubs, the Red Cross, and Gen. U.S. Grant.

I feel a sense of relief when no newspaper comes out with a story you have just stepped out of the shower baths to take a crack at George Washington, the new nuclear submarine, Bold Ruler, Eddie Arcaro, New England boiled dinners and Paul Revere's ride, and that you met the press in the locker room to sound off on a baseball player's dissatisfaction with President Eisenhower, Lassie and the late Alfalfa Bill Murray.

WHAT'S EATING YOU? You are in a position to be a public idol, and you blow it.

You have a soft job, wonderful hours and one of the highest salaries in sports. Nobody has threatened to trade you to the One Eye League.

You have not been hampered by the Suez Canal closing. Nobody has mentioned you in the Dave Beck case. So what disturbs you?

Take it easy, Ted. You're a baseball player, not a public orator, a philosopher, a board of censorship or a demonstrator of the use of harpoon, blunderbus and hatchet.

Yours,
Elmer

P. S. — Taft pitched no games against you and when Harry Truman takes all those walks he ain't getting on base for a rival team.

"CINDERELLA" is to have another TV presentation, this time by ballet . . . This can be pretty wonderful, if Cinderella isn't made into too much of a running broad-jumper . . . Excellent as was the Rodgers-Hammerstein presentation last week, we think it pretty impossible to project the delicate, tender beauty of the deathless fairy story under any Broadway touch.

A person's childhood impression of the Cinderella characters and events is completely out of this world and lingers through life.

Nothing show business does can quite equal it . . . For example, it seemed ridiculous in the TV show to see Cinderella looking exactly the same facially at the ball as she did at home, with her stepsisters and stepmother never recognizing her.

All readers of the fairy tale thought that the godmother transformed her more extensively than by a mere change of costume . . . Nobody can tell us that Cinderella looked like Miss Rheingold both before and after.

Secretary Dulles has co-authored a book, proving that looking for trouble has become habitual.

77 Youths Arrested, Gang Battle Averted

FREMONT, Ohio (AP)—Police in nearby Clyde prevented a teenage gang fight Thursday night by arresting 77 boys before the fists, clubs, knives and tire irons flew.

The projected battle was to have been between a gang from Fremont and a gang from Clyde, about eight miles east of Fremont. The trouble had been brewing since Wednesday night when two Fremont boys fought two Clyde boys over two girls.

Assisted by two deputy sheriffs and a state highway patrolman two Clyde policemen met cars full of Fremont boys as they rolled into Clyde.

They arrested 57 Fremont boys, one from Bellevue, and rounded up 19 Clyde boys, who were hanging around a confectionery.

1,038 At Rally Of Jehovah's Witnesses

Nicholas Kovalak Jr. gave the address of welcome to 1,038 persons who attended the opening session of the three-day Circuit Assembly of Jehovah's Witnesses at Brookwood Roller Rink Friday evening.

The theme was "Tell the Good News," and Kovalak stressed a refresher course as a part of the regular training program conducted in all congregations of Jehovah's Witnesses.

Kovalak said for 1,900 years Christians have prayed for a government under the direction of Christ Jesus. "Shortly, this information or good news will be extended world wide," he declared. "That is the reason Jehovah's Witnesses preach the Good News of the Kingdom as man's only practical hope in 162 lands."

The speaker pointed out that Jesus preached, trained his disciples and instructed Christians, saying, "This Good News of the Kingdom will be preached in all the earth for a witness unto all nations and then shall the end come."

Over 40 per cent of the people are not church members, and they need spiritual encouragement, and the best place to find them is at their homes, Kovalak said.

He declared, "Jehovah's Witnesses are a preaching fellowship and this assembly is really an extension and refresher of the regular training program that is enjoyed at each congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses. It is designed to cultivate and train our people in works of Christian preaching and living."

Kovalak will talk on "Removing the Barriers Dividing Mankind" Sunday at 3 p.m. The public is invited to attend all sessions.

of Nursing. These included Warren Trumbull Memorial, Youngstown Hospital Association, Steubenville Ohio Valley, Akron General Hospital, Massillon City Hospital and Canton Aultman. Each of these schools offered excellent proposals, Metzger said, but Canton Aultman was selected because of the basic similarity of the Salem and Canton schools' curricular activities.

Both schools send their students to Mount Union College for science courses and have many other similarities in the curriculum. Canton Aultman has other advantages including lower tuition fees than the Salem school due to heavy endowments and outside financial resources, he explained.

George R. Wren, director of the Aultman Hospital, stated that they would willingly accept any or all of the Salem students under their established policy for transfer students.

Miss Hilda Thompson and Miss Carol Glausser, presidents of the Freshman and Junior Classes, respectively, expressed the satisfaction of the two classes with this arrangement. The Canton school has an enrollment of 224.

A tea to welcome the Salem students and their parents is planned in the near future in Canton.

Construction of the new high school was made possible by voters' approval of a $2,585,000 bond issue in November of 1955.

Freeman's bid on the general contract was $1,594,888 with other bids for heating, plumbing, electrical work, etc., combining for a total of $2,160,622.

The $424,318 difference between that and the bond issue figure is being utilized in architect's fees, improvements at the present high school building, and other incidentals.

Bakers Union Debates Charge Of Corruption Among Officers

WASHINGTON — Labor leaders embroiled in a fracas over alleged corruption in the Bakery Workers Union debated today whether it is good or bad unionism to bring such charges to public attention.

Herman Winter, president emeritus of the union and an AFL-CIO vice president, said the way to handle such charges is "the democratic trade union way of settling internal disputes — not in the press or before outside committees."

But the author of the charges, Secretary - Treasurer Curtis R. Sims, asked "is public knowledge of the truth a greater union crime than the scandalous misuse of a union's money by its highest officials?"

Sims said Friday he learned Union President James G. Cross was paying the union some $2,500 for personal telephone calls to a girl friend and that he also was returning to the union "three embarrassing Cadillac."

This brought a statement from Cross through a spokesman that "despite the advice of attorneys that there was nothing improper in my use of the telephone or in accepting an automobile gift," he was nonetheless paying for the challenged phone calls and returning the car.

Cross' statement said he had received the car as a "gift" from the union's Chicago joint council in 1955. The statement made no reference to any other automobile.

Early last month Sims accused Cross and Union Vice President George Stuart of misconduct and mishandling union funds. He asked their removal, but the executive board of the 160,000-member union exonerated Cross and Stuart. At the same time, the board suspended Sims for publicizing what it contended was an intra-union matter.

Later, Stuart resigned, saying he planned to enter private business in Kansas City, Mo. Sims said Stuart's resignation was aimed at letting Stuart "take the rap" and allowing Cross to emerge "lily white."

The AFL-CIO Ethical Practices Committee is investigating Sims' charges and the Senate Rackets Committee also has expressed interest.

Purifier Developed For Exhaust Fumes

PHILADELPHIA — Roused by complaints about its buses' exhaust fumes, the Philadelphia Transportation Co. set out to develop a suitable deodorant.

PTC technicians, working with a General Motors representative, produced a chemical that it is hoped will ease the problem.

The aromatic formula is put into a cylinder, so mounted in the mechanism, that the deodorant mixes with the exhaust fumes, acting as a purifying, perfuming filter.

The project is still in the experimental stage but the PTC says only a little more research and trial are needed to make it a practical and welcome innovation.
